International Work Force Skills for Korean Companies Standards

The STANDARDS for the Working in Multicultural Environments: Korean are:

 influenced the development of modern South Koreas compared to the development of the United States. Discuss the legacy of war and the military defensive mindset prevalent in the South Korean society on the cultural development and business practices in South Korea. Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	04	Commence and commence the second back and the second Baylain the impact of population density on culture, lifestyle, and business practices. Identify and locate surrounding countries. Explain how geography has influenced the history of the Korean Peninsula and the resulting impact on cultural development and business practices. Analyze how physical factors such as mountain, climates, and bodies of waters have influenced the development of modern South Koreas compared to the development of the United States. Discuss the legacy of war and the military defensive mindset prevalent in the South Korean society on the cultural development and business practices in South Korea. Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. Discuss the south Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. Identify the presive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual environment. 	01
 practices. 1dentify and locate surrounding countries. Explain how geography has influenced the history of the Korean Peninsula and the resulting impact on cultural development and business practices. Analyze how physical factors such as mountain, climates, and bodies of waters have influenced the development of modern South Koreas compared to the development of the United States. Discuss the legacy of war and the military defensive mindset prevalent in the South Korean society on the cultural development and business practices in South Korea. Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	02	Compare population densities of South Korea, the United States, and Alabama.
 04 Identify and locate surrounding countries. 05 Explain how geography has influenced the history of the Korean Peninsula and the resulting impact on cultural development and business practices. 06 Analyze how physical factors such as mountain, climates, and bodies of waters have influenced the development of modern South Koreas compared to the development of the United States. 07 Discuss the legacy of war and the military defensive mindset prevalent in the South Korean society on the cultural development and business practices in South Korea. 08 Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. 09 Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. 10 Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. 11 Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. 12 Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. 13 Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. 14 Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	03	Explain the impact of population density on culture, lifestyle, and business
 05 Explain how geography has influenced the history of the Korean Peninsula and the resulting impact on cultural development and business practices. 06 Analyze how physical factors such as mountain, climates, and bodies of waters have influenced the development of modern South Koreas compared to the development of the United States. 07 Discuss the legacy of war and the military defensive mindset prevalent in the South Korean society on the cultural development and business practices in South Korea. 08 Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. 09 Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. 10 Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. 11 Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. 12 Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. 13 Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. 14 Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		practices.
 resulting impact on cultural development and business practices. Analyze how physical factors such as mountain, climates, and bodies of waters have influenced the development of modern South Koreas compared to the development of the United States. Discuss the legacy of war and the military defensive mindset prevalent in the South Korean society on the cultural development and business practices in South Korea. Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	04	Identify and locate surrounding countries.
 O6 Analyze how physical factors such as mountain, climates, and bodies of waters have influenced the development of modern South Koreas compared to the development of the United States. O7 Discuss the legacy of war and the military defensive mindset prevalent in the South Korean society on the cultural development and business practices in South Korea. O8 Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. O9 Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. 10 Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. 11 Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. 12 Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. 13 Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. 14 Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	05	Explain how geography has influenced the history of the Korean Peninsula and the influenced the development of modern South Koreas compared to the development of the United States. Discuss the legacy of war and the military defensive mindset prevalent in the South Korean society on the cultural development and business practices in South Korea. Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		resulting impact on cultural development and business practices.
 development of the United States. Discuss the legacy of war and the military defensive mindset prevalent in the South Korean society on the cultural development and business practices in South Korea. Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	06	Analyze how physical factors such as mountain, climates, and bodies of waters have
 Discuss the legacy of war and the military defensive mindset prevalent in the South Korean society on the cultural development and business practices in South Korea. Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		influenced the development of modern South Koreas compared to the Korean society on the cultural development and business practices in South Korea. 08 Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. 09 Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. 10 Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. 11 Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. 12 Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. 13 Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. 14 Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		development of the United States.
 08 Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. 09 Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. 10 Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. 11 Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. 12 Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. 13 Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. 14 Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	07	Discuss the legacy of war and the military defensive mindset prevalent in the South are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments. Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		Korean society on the cultural development and business practices in South Korea.
 Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies are structured. Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	08	Explain why one cultural people, the Koreans, living on one geographic peninsula, are structured. Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		are divided into two distinct nations with separate governments.
 Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	09	Describe the five (5) primary relationship paradigms on which Confucian societies
 American emphasis on individual rights and liberties. 11 Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. 12 Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. 13 Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. 14 Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		are structured.
 Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, family and school in establishing successful business relationships. Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	10	Discuss the South Korean emphasis on the needs of the collective versus the family and school in establishing successful business relationships. 12 Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. 13 Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. 14 Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		American emphasis on individual rights and liberties.
 12 Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. 13 Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. 14 Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	11	Discuss the value and importance of the concepts of seniority, respect, elders, educational growth of the South Korea since 1953. 13 Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. 14 Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		family and school in establishing successful business relationships.
 13 Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence communications in the workplace. 14 Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	12	Analyze the impact of limited natural resources on the cultural, business, communications in the workplace. 14 Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		educational growth of the South Korea since 1953.
 14 Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	13	Identify the four components of language acquisition and how they influence speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		communications in the workplace.
 workplace. 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	14	Identify the common use of idioms, slang, and contractions among native English
 15 Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		speakers and how these language forms complicate communication in the communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment. Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		workplace.
 Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in writter and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 	15	Revise negative or passive phrasing into positive or active phrasing to facilitate and oral communication. Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		communications in the workplace in a multilingual environment.
 Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications. Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments 		 Distinguish between passive/negative and active/positive phrasing in written
Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments		and oral communication.
		 Identify benefits of positive/active phrasing in communications.
must often be explained.		 Explain why jokes and humor in multilingual work or social environments must often be explained.
16 Demonstrate acceptable and unacceptable gestures and behaviors in multicultural	16	Demonstrate acceptable and unacceptable gestures and behaviors in multicultural workplaces and social situations.		workplaces and social situations.
17 Summarize how cultural customs and traditions influence business practices and	17	Summarize how cultural customs and traditions influence business practices and human/interpersonal interaction and mannerism.		human/interpersonal interaction and mannerism.